

Archbishop Molloy Introduces SafeStudents Online Program for Parents

SafeStudents Online is pleased to announce that Archbishop Molloy High School, a Catholic, Marist school located in Jamaica, New York, has selected SafeStudents Online to help its parents keep their children safe from some of the threats commonly found on social media.

Starting in fall 2017, Archbishop Molloy will purchase the SafeStudents Online program on behalf of all parents of incoming 9th grade students. Parents will be able to monitor their children's social media activity for inappropriate or potentially dangerous posts and will receive alerts to help them take action when necessary.

SafeStudents Online balances protection with privacy to encourage collaboration and communication between parents and children. The advanced technology helps parents keep their children safe from online threats such as cyberbullying, online predators, and damaged reputations. Parents never need to ask for their children's passwords, and the online activity is monitored privately by parents, with the school having no access to the content.

Detailed information and instructions will be provided at our Back to School meeting on September 28th.

"We are excited to partner with SafeStudents Online, a service for our incoming freshmen and their parents, to help our students become responsible cyber citizens. The program's intention is to foster discussion between students and their parents about appropriate and acceptable online activity so that inappropriate and unacceptable activity is stopped before it happens. With increased awareness of their sons' and daughters' presence online, parents can reinforce what students learn in their Computer and Religion classes through open and constructive monitoring and dialogue."

- Mr. Darius Penikas, Principal
